Discover:Screen lets students with disabilities join in your classroom writing projects. Use Discover:Screen with any word processing, phonics or spelling program that requires text entry. When you want a writing tool for pre-writers and emerging writers, you need Discover:Screen in your classroom. Discover:Screen offers pictures, word banks and a full keyboard so students can enter text. It supports the writing process for students at various literacy levels.

- For students who can't read, Discover:Screen shows pictures on the screen for symbolic writing.
- For word bank writers, Discover:Screen shows complete words and phrases for constructing sentences.
- For single-letter writers, Discover:Screen is a full keyboard.

If your students use a touch screen or trackball, choose Discover:Screen. Discover:Screen puts a colorful, easy-to-see keyboard on the computer screen. Make keys bigger or smaller, change colors, and add pictures or words to make the on-screen keyboard look, act and sound just the way you need it for students.
